These behaviours may be calmed by the physical proximity of an adult. Moving towards the young person, seemingly for another purpose can help to refocus them on their work. • Tactically ignoring – notice but appear to ignore low level disruptions while reinforcing on task behaviour. While appearing to ignore, decide – which behaviours you can appropriately ignore and how long you are prepared to ignore for. Verbal <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Distract and divert stage 1 – eg, ‘Mark, can I see your work please?’ or ‘I can see you’re finding this difficult, can I give you a hand now?’ This is an attempt to break the cycle of low level behaviour and gives the young person the chance to start again. • Use ‘When ... then...’ requests. i.e., ‘When you are in your seat, then I will come and help you.’ • Redirect the young person by emphasising the behaviour you want to see rather than reinforcing the negatives such as ‘Don’t swing on your chair’ or ‘Stop calling out’ instead you could say ‘I need you to place all 4 legs on the floor’ and ‘I expect to see you put your hand up if you need to speak.’ Be assertive and sound like you expect compliance and move on swiftly.

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Avoid using can you please, rather give the instruction and say 'thank you' – which shows that you expect compliance rather than request it. • Staff to deal with low level disruptions where possible
Level 2 Persistence of level 1 behaviours <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Not on task • Disrupting others, chatting in class • Not listening • Interrupting • Swinging on chairs • Ignoring instruction • Inappropriate use of mobile technology and <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Intentionally damaging own or another student's work • Minor vandalism – ie, writing on tables • Misuse of property or resources • Mild inappropriate language • Low level threatening behaviour • Answering back • Telling lies and getting other students into trouble 	May include <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Reposition within the class, i.e., go to a designated work station/area within the classroom that is an informal form of time out to take a break and break the cycle of spiralling negative behaviour. • Point out choices and linked positive/negative consequences, eg. 'If you choose to continue with this then that will happen' or 'If you choose to stop this and make the right choice then that will happen. I'm going to give you one minute to make your choice but I know you will do the right thing/make the right choice.' • Distract and divert stage 2 – the young person's behaviour is escalating so divert them by giving legitimate responsibilities, eg. a job for 5/10 minutes. This should help the young person to break the spiralling negative behaviour so that when they return to class they can start again. • Change of face with another staff member. • Time out of class, but with frequent monitoring. • Working in isolation. • Follow up meeting with SLT to consider next steps. • Contact parent/carers for support with issues.
